

MomTricks › Baby Gear › Baby Toys › You're Here

17 Best Non-Toxic Teething Toys For Lightning-Quick Relief

Natural teether choices baby will love.

by Jennifer Taylor
FEBRUARY 23, 2017

Teething typically starts around 4–6 months of age, and there's no mistaking it.

You'll know, because they'll put literally anything in their mouth in an attempt to get some relief...

...even if that includes their own fingers or anything in arms reach.

Teether toys are a great way to keep their tiny mouths busy, but not all teethers are safe to use. In fact, some have awful, harmful chemicals you'd want nowhere near your little one's mouth.

So we put together this guide with 17 safe, non-toxic teethers that you can rely on.

All of these teethers:

- Contain no toxic chemicals, only natural materials.
- Are easy for baby to hold and use.
- Are highly-rated by parents.
- Are inexpensive and can fit in any budget.

They're all excellent options that baby will love!

Our list of 17 wonderful teething toys.

Sophie The Giraffe So Pure

Why we love it:

Coming from a leader in the teething industry, this charming giraffe features two attached rings with differing textures to suite baby's preferences.

The fact that it's made with 100% natural rubber and a seamless, no-holes design means it is safe for your precious infant. The softer design is especially geared toward advanced teethers, but all babies can enjoy it. A must-have for your diaper bag!